Owning and renting property has an impact on your tax position. Whilst we can help you find the right mortgage for your Buy to Let properties you should seek independent tax advice. Each landlord will have different circumstances. Rental income, mortgage repayments, non-property related earnings, and any benefits you receive as well as whether property is held solely, jointly or in a company structure all impact your tax position.

Do you pay tax on Buy to Let property income?

You must pay tax on any profit you make from renting out property. How much you pay depends on:

- how much profit you make
- your personal circumstances

Your profit is the amount left once you've added together your rental income and taken away the expenses or allowances that you can claim. You must contact HMRC if you have taxable profits from your property you rent.

Tax relief on mortgage interest costs

Landlords used to be able to offset mortgage interest payments against rental income, but in 2015 the government announced they're phasing this out. You'll still be able to deduct some of your finance costs when you work out your taxable property profits during the transitional period. These deductions will be gradually withdrawn and replaced with a basic rate relief tax reduction.

For the 2019-20 tax year only 25% of finance costs can be deducted at higher rate, with the remaining 75% being available as a basic rate tax reduction. From April 2020, you won't be able to deduct any of your mortgage expenses from rental income to reduce your tax bill. Instead, you'll receive a tax-credit, based on 20% of your mortgage interest payments.

This means that a landlord getting £10,000 in rent and paying £5,000 in mortgage interest payments will end up paying tax on the full £10,000 – though the amount will still depend on their tax bracket. They will then be able to deduct £1,000 from their tax bill due to the 20% tax credit, leaving them with the final overall tax bill on their rental income. Here's an example for a higher rate tax payer in England & Wales*:
